If the Client receives another bonus before the expiration of the bonus, the validity period will be extended by 90 days.

2.3. Until the bonus is worked out when the Client withdraws own funds or transfers them to another account, the bonus decreases in proportion to the balance of the account. 2.5. When working out the bonus, only trading with own funds (without bonus funds) is taken into account.

2.8. Part of the trading result made using the bonus funds will be cancelled. The reason for revising the result can be insufficient trading activity on the account, such as the execution of one large transaction or several transactions with a smaller volume, executed at about the same time and at similar prices, which is a splitting of a large transaction into smaller ones. As a rule, such accounts do not have a sufficient trading history. If such transactions are discovered, the company can also withdraw the bonus at any time without prior notice.

2.9. Investizo reserves the right to request additional identification information from the Client.
